Recitation

In a royal family, a boy who is in line to rule after his mother or father will become the king. A king is a boy or a man who takes care of a region and the people who live in that region.

Chorus 1

If I were king today, I'd make this world a better place.
If I were king today, oh, what would I decree?

Recitation 1

A decree is a ruling, a verdict, a pronouncement. If the adult in your home asks that you make up your bed, or take out the trash, or help with the dishes, then that adult has made a decree—a ruling about how you are to act in your home to help keep you safe and cared for. So, if you were to be a pretend king for today, what would you decree?

Chorus 1

If I were king today, I'd make this world a better place.
If I were king today, oh, what would I decree?

Verse 1

Would I decree a day for dancing, or a trip to see the stars? Would I decree a time for singing, or hopscotch in the yard? Whatever is the ruling, Whatever the decree, It would be to make a better world for you and for me.

SING-A-LONGS

Mr. Chuck

Recitation 2

A girl, if she's in line to rule after her father or mother, will become the queen. A queen is a girl or a woman who takes care of a region and the people who live in that region.

Chorus 2

If I were queen today, I'd make this world a better place.
If I were queen today, oh what would I decree?

Recitation 3

Remember, a decree is a ruling, a verdict, a pronouncement. So, since you are a pretend queen for today, what would you decree? What kind of decree would you pronounce to make this world safe and fun for everyone?

Chorus 2

If I were queen today, I'd make this world a better place.
If I were queen today, oh what would I decree?

Verse 2

Would I decree a day for jumping, or skipping in the yard?
Would I decree a time for ice cream, or orange juice from a jar?
Whatever is the ruling,
Whatever the decree, It would be to make a better world for you and for me.
