

It Must Be A Weed

Bluebird

The Eastern Bluebird is diurnal.

http://www.softschools.com/facts/animals/eastern_bluebird_facts/1784/

Firefly / Lightning Bug

The firefly or lightning bug takes oxygen inside special cells and combines it with luciferin to glow.

<http://animals.nationalgeographic.com/animals/bugs/firefly/>

Caterpillar

Some varieties of caterpillar eat at night.

<https://www.gardeningknowhow.com/ornamental/vines/bougainvillea/bougainvillea-loopers.htm>

Owl

Most owl species are nocturnal.

<http://aviary.owls.com/Owls-Facts.html>

Zebra

Zebras make a "laughing" sound.

<https://www.google.com/search?q=zebra+sound>

Woodpecker

Woodpeckers peck into trees in search of food or to create nesting. Woodpeckers also "drum," or peck in a rapid rhythmic succession to establish territory and attract mates. "Drumming" usually occurs in the spring on metal or wood resonant surfaces.

https://www.fws.gov/nevada/nv_species/urban_wildlife/woodpecker.htm

Turtle

The Guinness Book of World Records, sea turtles have a lifespan of up to 152 years.

<http://yourshot.nationalgeographic.com/tags/turtle/>

Evergreen

Evergreen trees that bear cones are called conifers and produce needles and cones instead of leaves and flowers. Not all conifers are evergreens; a few species of conifers lose their leaves in fall and winter.

<http://homeguides.sfgate.com/evergreen-trees-produce-cones-47392.html>